Subject: RE: Habitat

Governor, Dick Lefebvre(Deputy Commissioner DNR) and Ken Taylor(Deputy Commissioner F&G) were tasked by Denby and me to give us a factual review of Habitat past at F&G and present at DNR by November. Denby and I will quickly get a recommendation for your consideration by December - likely much sooner.

I have been working with the resource developers to make sure our bases are covered. The Alaska Miners Association and the Council of Alaska Producers have agreed to start telling the public "they believe in the strong permitting process since they know that is best for responsible miners, they welcome constructive comments, they know the Governor has asked for a habitat evaluation, and they know the Governor will make a good decision and they will support the decision". I am pleased that we have this support. This gives us freedom to make a correct decision. I have discussed this with RDC and I believe we will get their support by next week. I know the Conservation Alliance has already told Art's/ Gilliam's group that they should stop the adds but the adds are already scheduled until Monday.

Personally the adds make me feel we shouldn't do anything and tell them to stick it but then I set that aside. We are here to do what is right.

At this point we are hearing from people we trust that the structure for the current DNR Habitat operating procedures should be maintained and protected. It is much better than in the past but the Division should go back to F&G so Habitat and F&G can work together.

The adds are trying to separate us, but that just won't work. You are stuck with me as long as you wish. I am really glad I am speaking at the Anch Chamber this Monday and am ready to take on the issues. My talk will quickly highlight the Administrations work on AGIA, ACES, our desire for economic energy to Alaskans, and the need for Resource development - the clear answer for Alaskan jobs, support of families, keeping our young people in Alaska, personal self worth, and real steps forward for addressing hopelessness, alcohol, drugs, physical and sexual abuse. I will then focus on the process, the reliability, and our goal to explain it to Alaskans.

Also the permitting process presentation is ready and we will be announcing dates and locations for the presentations to the public on Monday.

Hope this wasn't too long. Thanks for asking. God bless! Tom Tom: do we know when LeFevre will have a report/reco's for us on Habitat move? I'm game to move it back if the experts have studied it and recommend it - otherwise, what will your presentation be to Chamber next week re: that specific topic?

Those darn Art Hackney ads are making it sound like we're not on the same page with our committment to consider the recommendations that should be forthcoming. Of course we're going to look at what they recommend at the end of the day.

Thanks!

REMARKS for Career Center Open House

I am delighted to be with all of you on this Alaska Day to celebrate and honor the work being done by the Sitka Education Consortium.

This Southeast Alaska Career Center is an excellent example of what can be accomplished when people work together to find solutions.

Alaskans around the state are talking about what you're doing here in Sitka - using unique collaborations to leverage resources and get things done!

I am very honored to make a special announcement - the Southeast Alaska Guidance Association (SAGA) has received a three-year, 1.2 million dollar grant that will provide construction education and leadership training to at-risk young people who will help build affordable housing here in Sitka.

PRA_GSP01_0006707

This grant is funded by the U.S. Department of Labor's Youthbuild program and recognizes a great partnership between SAGA, the Sitka Education Consortium, the Baranof Island Housing Authority and this SEEK center.

The grant will fund a program known as Sitka's Young Alaskans Building Affordable Housing (YABAH) and will include individuals who have been in the juvenile justice system, youths aging out of foster care, high school dropouts and others.

This newest funding - one of only 96 Youthbuild grants nationwide - is an example of what successful collaboration can accomplish.

Since 1996, 150 SAGA students have built 2 homes in Fairbanks, 3 homes in Sitka, 6 homes in Juneau and 11 homeless shelter units at Juneau's St. Vincent De Paul.

With programs like these, our young people can be proud that they are not only improving their own lives, but also making a positive difference for their families, friends and neighbors.

This new grant will serve 32, primarily Native, high school dropouts who will each spend 6 to 9 months in the program while earning a GED or HS Diploma.

And help build two affordable homes in Sitka from the ground up.

The students will gain skills and training in Alaska's fast-growing construction. They will receive a monthly living stipend of about $1,100 a month. They will earn an AmeriCorps Education Award. And they will be taking the first steps toward a variety of rewarding educational opportunities and careers.

A small part ~~of the~~ grant will become seed money to continue the program - keeping future students on an upward cycle, rather than a downward spiral.

Congratulations to Joe Parrish, SAGA's founder and executive director - and to all of those who will serve and be served by this wonderful collaboration.

Honorable Governor Palin,

I have served the people of Alaska as the Chief of Enforcement for the Alaska Occupational Safety and Health Section for a number of years and now I'm retired. I have two sons who have both served in the War against Terroism. My first son served in the US Air Force and my second son Joe just spent 15 months with the Alaska Army National Guard in Kuwait. After serving the 15 months the troops were just informed by General Katkus that they had chartered flights for soliders serving from Bethel and Juneau but for the soliders from Southcentral and Fairbanks the military does not have arrangements to get them home but are working on a solution. General Katkus stated they were attempting to have a C-17 pickup our soliders from Southcentral but he couldn't make any promises. This is unacceptable! Like my son said they have had 15 months to get the logistics straighted out, but it seems they have waited until the last minute and now they don't know what is going to happen. I'm surpised and I

'm glad that they were able to find planes for Southwest and Southeast Alaskans but as for the rest of the State it appears were not as important. I'm not sure who is responsible for this screw up but I think our sons and daughters deserve some answers. Please have someone from your staff get some answers for them and for their families.

Thank you for all your hard work as our Governor and for any help you could give to this matter.

Subject: BG phone call information - for Thursday, October 18th (Alaska Day!)

Governor,

As a follow-up to our conversation earlier today, I am providing a quick review of the reasons BG gave for deciding not to participate in the AGIA application process. I am also providing the contact information for the BG call in the morning, and some ideas for that conversation.

Review:

David Keane, BG Group Vice President/Policy & Corporate Affairs, advised me that BG has just made the decision not to participate in the AGIA application process. They indicate this decision was very difficult as they continue to believe AGIA is the appropriate vehicle to move the gas pipeline project forward, they continue to be very committed to investing in Alaska and will be drilling 3 exploration wells in the Foothills area of the North Slope this winter, they fully intend to bid on the Pt Thomson area leases when they become available, and they intend to reach out to the eventual AGIA Licensee to determine if there is any opportunity to partner with this yet undetermined company in order to develop a spur line and LNG facility. However, BG made their decision not to proceed in the AGIA application process based upon the economics of the project, which they estimate to be in the $19 Billion range (for the North Slope processing plant, overbuilt pipeline to Delta Jct in order to accomodate a Phase 2 Canadian highway route project, smaller pipeline to Valdez and LNG plant.) Fundamentally the project didn't provide BG their internal "hurdle rate" (which is minimum rate of return required by a particular company in order for them to make an investment.) It is important to note that exploration and production companies generally require much higher rates of return than do pipeline companies, as the e & p's regularly make high risk investment, whereas pipeline companies are low risk investors with much lower, regulated rates of return. Furthermore, BG has been partnering with Williams Pipeline Company intending to submit a 2-party AGIA application. According to BG, Williams advised them last week they had determined they could not participate in the project for an entirely different reason. As you know, Williams is only recently emerging from the impact of the Enron debacle and while things are progressing well, they have been informed by their financial advisors that the financial community will view Williams investing in this project as a bad decision. This is because the current Williams investor is looking for quarterly returns (very short term), whereas this project will not provide returns for 7 to 8 years. It was fairly clear from BG's comments that Williams decision not to partner with them was also a major blow, particularly as it left BG with the full investment commitment, exascerbating their rate of return problem.

Additional information:

We have been told that BG had 57 people working on an AGIA application and has spent over $1 million dollars on the effort. Furthermore I know that Martin Houston, who met with you last Spring, was very impressed with you, the AGIA process and with Alaska. Martin has been a major proponent of this effort to participate in AGIA. Finally, we have been advised that BG Group corporate is having a meeting tomorrow (Thursday, October 18th) to finalize their decision to not participate in the AGIA process.
